Coaching for International Leadership

Congratulations! You've made it. You're a success.

All the long days have been worth it. All the air miles and hotel bedrooms. All the hot boardrooms and cold shoulders. All the tight deadlines and loose agreements. All the sleepless nights.

And missed parents' evenings.

So, you're here. In a job you have wanted for a long time. A job where you have challenges and responsibility, rewards and respect. A job where people wait for your decisions, follow your lead.

And expect you to be right.

And yet the job never remains the same. Perhaps it has become international—and you find yourself having to be impressive to several different nationalities.

In English.

Perhaps you have to be able to function, at your normal high level, in different cultures.

Perhaps, you find that you need new skills such as Presentation Skills, Negotiation Techniques, Chairing Meetings, Building Teams, Motivational Tools, International Leadership.

Or perhaps, you are challenged by Time Management, Crisis Management or Change Management.

And all in a global environment. With an international focus.

And suddenly you realise that there is no-one you can work with on this. Everyone expects decisions from you, not discussion. You are there to provide answers, not ask questions.

This is where Coaching for International Leadership can help you. At last, you have someone to discuss your ideas with, talk over problems, and examine options. Someone who can assist you to grow, develop and be even more successful. Someone who is experienced, confidential and expert.

Someone who can help.
